The PRISMA extension statement for network meta-analysis: development, progress and findings

Thursday, April 10, 2014 1200-1300 ET

Learning Objectives:

- To become familiar with how a network meta-analysis differs from a traditional pairwise meta-analysis, and why it's added features require a PRISMA extension statement to improve reporting of such works relative to current approaches.
- To become familiar with the process for developing a reporting guideline as was followed for the development of the PRISMA NMA extension.
- To become familiar with some of the key guidances which emerged from our efforts that will appear in the PRISMA NMA guidance, and how we plan to distribute this information to our target audiences of researchers, clinicians, decision-makers and journal editors.
